ANNUAL BARGAIN DAY

Its Announcement Is Attracting More Than Usual Attention.

On one day only, next Saturday, March 16, the Daily Republican will be offered for one year in advance at $4.00. This is a genuine bargain in newspaper reading. It means a saving of $1.20 per year over the amount which would be paid in weekly installments. To secure this price all arrears if any must be paid in full. This is the sixth annual Bargain Day which the Republican has offered in Seymour and its popularity has grown each year since it was first originated. Many of our patrons have taken advantage of this special offer. Besides the large saving in money it means being rid of the trouble of settling every week throughout the year.

The Republican has grown steadily in its circulation until now 1250 copies are issued daily and more than 1,000 of these are taken within the city limits. The Republican has always endeavored to cover thoroughly the local news field and the growing patronage that has been accorded it is the best evidence that its efforts have been appreciated by the people generally.

Remember next Saturday is the bargain day. Make your plans to take advantage of this newspaper offer.

WEATHER DOPE

Monday's Snow Said to Have Been 28th This Winter.

There is a saying among the older German people that if there is a snow on October 28 in the fall of the year there will be twenty-eight snows during the winter following. Last fall there was a slight snow on the 28th of October and the snow that fell Monday morning was the twenty-eighth snow of the winter according to those who kept account of them. There has been so many that it would be hard for one to keep track of them if he had anything else to do but it is probably true that we have had twenty-eight snows during the winter. This week will mark the end of the six weeks' prediction as made by the ground hog on February 2, and if that prediction holds good from now on like it has in the past this will be the last week of the winter. Every one is hoping that Mr. Ground Hog was right and we will have some sunshine and warm weather from now on.

BLOOMINGTON PAPER

Speaks of Seymour Attorney in Complimentary Manner.

E. P. Elsner of Seymour was a visitor to Bloomington this week. He graduated from the Law School of Indiana University in 1904 and began to practice at once in his home county. As a student here Mr. Elsner was prominent and active. Everybody liked him and his friends were always free to predict that he would make a success in whatever line of work he chose. This prediction has been verified in the legal line. A few weeks ago he became a candidate for Senator from the district composed of Jackson, Washington and Brown counties. He has already received the unanimous endorsement of his home county and he is now looking after his interest in other counties. He is a man of genial personality, is a hard worker and his campaign will be marked with dignity and activity. He is a man of the common people and makes friends readily. Should he be nominated and elected the district would have a man that would reflect credit upon the entire State.—Bloomington World.

Two Bad Stores.

Of a total of 752 inspections made by deputies under H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, during the month of February there were only two food-handling institutions classed as "bad." The showing is remarkable, Mr. Barnard said. Eighty-two grocery stores, of the 260 examined, were classed as "fair."

The number of establishments classed "excellent" by the inspectors during the month was thirteen, though the number reported "good" was 460. The number reported "fair" was 252 and the total number classed "poor" was twenty-five. The total number of inspections under the report of the state commissioner does not represent the total number made throughout the state, Mr. Barnard said. He declared that the co-operation of the health officers in various communities rapidly is becoming more than appreciable and that hundreds of inspections are being made by such officials each month. Such inspections, however, are not reported to Mr. Barnard.

The meat markets inspected last month numbered 133, the drug stores ninety-six, bakeries and confectioneries ninety-six, hotels and restaurants 109, poultry houses 12, fish markets two, creameries three, ice cream parlors twenty-five, wholesale groceries one, flour mills twelve, bottling works two and milk depots one.

Bakeries and confectioneries, hotels and restaurants led in the number declared "poor," seven of each being so listed. One grocery store and one meat market were declared "bad."

COUNCILMEN APPROACHED

By Number of Men With Proposition To Reduce City Liquor License.

MATTER UP TUESDAY NIGHT

Councilmen Against The Suggestion. The Board of Works Considered Sewer Questions.

The Board of Works held a meeting Tuesday evening and after adjournment the Board of Finance held a short session to discuss a matter in regard to which several of the councilmen had been approached recently.

The matter was presented by Misch. He stated that a number of men interested in the liquor business had been coming to him and urging that the council reduce the city liquor license, claiming that the license is too high to permit of doing a profitable business. Misch stated that he had given the men no encouragement but desired to hear an expression from the other councilmen. The proposition did not meet with favor, one or two being very emphatic in their expressions. It was urged that a high license made the dealers more careful to observe the law and as a business proposition a few less saloons at a high license was as profitable as a greater number at a low license. Davison in his talk declared that he would like to see the license $1000 instead of the present figure, and then added that after that he would like to see whiskey twenty cents a drink. The council took it by consent that no request for a lower license will be granted.

The meeting of the Board of Works was held to consider sewer questions. The engineer presented plans and made some suggestions. As a result of the discussions it was decided to put in an overflow outlet at the Newby ditch on the Third street sewer which runs to the river. With this when there is a heavy rush of water part of it will be discharged into the big ditch. It is only 1800 feet from the city to the ditch and it is 10,000 feet from there on to the river.

It was also decided to put in a cement outlet fifty feet in length at the point where the new sewer from Second street empties into the big ditch along the B. & O.

The plans for the new Read-Jordan sewer and outlet was approved. It will cost the city a little in excess of $202 and the property owners in the new addition about $108.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

YOUR BOY.

This is a serious talk to parents concerning the boy—the common, everyday garden variety of boy.

He is a great institution. He is bigger than factory or farm or business because he has in him the making of a man, and a man is the biggest thing in the universe.

Shall the boy be a man or a thing?

There is a lot of good in the average boy. He is inclined to be trustful, and he has a keen sense of justice. His heart is wide open to an appeal to manliness, and he wants to do his best.

Good material out of which to manufacture manliness. But—

If you would get the best out of him believe in him, not make believe, or he will find you out.

If you believe in him he will believe in you—which is your starting point.

And if you really believe in him you will not scold him nor find fault. That sort of treatment brings the bad, not the good, out of him.

To get at the heart of him foster his natural desire to do his best by encouragement.

He will grow into the likeness of that which he desires to do or be.

Stimulate his desire to be or do, and he will come to his fruition naturally, as a flower grows. Even flowers must be encouraged.

Cheer him on.

If he tends to some bad habit change his surroundings. Association has everything to do in the making or un-making of a boy. Get him into the right sort of company, change his activities, and the bad habits will disappear by disuse.

Do not do too much for him.

Be careful along this line. If you do too much he will do nothing for himself. Which is fatal. He must learn to do things by doing them—by experience.

Be very firm, but very kind.

Remember that he is in the making. Treat him fairly, but justly—remember, very justly.

As he grows older appeal to his pride to get on in the world. Get his confidence and hold on to it. Give impulse to his ambition. Keep him in the straight path.

Common sort of advice?

Yes, common, but many a parent is trying to force his boy or to neglect him and then scold him into manliness. It cannot be done.

THE DIVORCE PROCTOR.

The idea of a divorce proctor, first applied in Kansas City, has been taken up in Chicago. Judge McDonald, of the superior court of Cook county, is advocating the adoption of the plan in Illinois, and an effort will be made to have it put into effect by the state legislature. There are strong reasons for the existence of such an official, says the Cleveland Leader. Divorces are too easily obtained. Under the present system it is often possible to deceive a judge, no matter how conscientious and careful he may be. Collusion between the parties to obtain a divorce, in the absence of causes recognized by the law, is by no means uncommon and frequently it is successful. Divorces are sometimes obtained also without the knowledge of the defendants. The divorce proctor represents the state and it is his duty to investigate every divorce case as carefully as a prosecuting attorney does the criminal cases he handles, with the difference that frequently he finds it necessary to give his services on behalf of the defense. He is working in the interest of the state—of society. Not only does he prevent injustice but he takes a load of responsibility off the shoulders of the judges and facilitates the work of the courts as well.

The suggestion of Prof. George D. Baker, of Harvard, head of the Drama League, of Boston, that American audiences should indicate their disapproval of plays and players by hissing, is received by producers with disapproval, naturally, and is not likely to win much favor with the playgoer. The qualifications of the one who hisses must be examined before we will grant him the privilege, and not even a certificate from the Drama League that such and such persons are equipped with critical judgment and are able to reach safe and sound opinions will be sufficient warrant for a commission to hiss. It is imaginable that the tired business man might find most earnest and sincere objection to a play which was giving the Drama League keen intellectual enjoyment, says the Chicago Tribune. It might be dangerous to commission them to hiss, and if the Drama League hissed a play which the tired business man was enjoying, it probably would find itself on its head outside the main door. The hiss will not help the drama uplift. Empty seats are the best protests against undesirable, bad or banal plays.

Professor von Wasserman has informed the Berlin Medical Society of amazingly successful experience in treating cancerous ulcers in mice with injections of a preparation containing eosin, tellurium and selenium. He says that after the fourth injection ulcerous affections almost entirely disappeared, and at the end of ten days some of the animals were entirely cured. But he is not certain, he says, that similar results would be attainable in the case of human beings.

Those French ghouls who broke into the tomb of an actress in the hope of robbing her body of an $80,000 pearl necklace must never have heard of a press agent. As a matter of fact the necklace was worth only $50.

The woman who bombarded a burglar with an armful of china plates had an excuse in that she did not have time to hunt up the female's traditional weapon of offense, the rolling pin.

A Buffalo man has been released after undergoing an operation to remove his criminal tendencies. Now other convicts want to be made good paradoxically by the cut-up methods.

A New York woman laughed herself to death over a joke. Probably she induced her husband to accompany her to a church social on the pretense that it was a baseball game.

A London scientist has discovered that shock sometimes changes the color of the eyes. And probably he explained to his wife that he ran into the edge of a door in the dark.

All the liars in the country do not live in Winsted, Conn., say the Boston Globe. If they did, Winsted, Conn., would be the biggest city in the world.

One of life's pleasant little surprises is to open the letter with nervous fingers and find a check cuddled down in the place where we expected a bill.

Don't forget, brothers, that 1912 is a leap year and that lovely woman is plainly in the mood to insist upon having everything she wants.

The first female jury panel in San Francisco will hear a corset case—for which the men may be thankful.

A New York man has turned an ancient grudge to good account by suing his mother-in-law for $100,000.

Now it is dictographs, not dicky birds, that tell tales.

The Men Who Succeed

as heads of large enterprises are men of great energy. Success today demands health. To ail is to fail. It's utter for a man to endure a weak, run-down, half-alive condition when Electric Bitters will put him right on his feet in short order. "Four bottles did me more real good than any other medicine I ever took," writes Chas. B. Allen, Sylvania, Ga. "After years of suffering with rheumatism, liver trouble, stomach disorders and deranged kidneys, I am again, thanks to Electric Bitters, sound and well." Try them. Only 50 cents at The Andrews Drug Co.

Her Face and Brow

James Whitcomb Riley

Help me! but her face and brow
Are lovelier than lilies are Beneath the light of moon and star
That smile as they are smiling now—
White lilies in a pallid swoon
Of sweetest white beneath the moon—
White lilies in a flood of bright
Pure lucidness of liquid light
Cascading down some plenilune,
When all the azure overhead
Blooms like a dazzling daisy bed—
So luminous her face and brow,
The luster of their glory, shed
In memory, even, blinds me now

The KITCHEN CABINET

I CAN'T abide to see men throw their tools! that way the minute the clock begins to strike, as if they took no pleasure in their work, and was afraid of doing a stroke too much. I hate to see a man's arm drop down as if he was shot before the clock fairly struck, just as if he'd never a bit of pride and delight in his work. The very grintstone 'll go on turning a bit after you loose it.

SOME CHOICE NORWEGIAN DISHES.

As every nationality has some characteristic dishes which make them famous, they are intensely interesting to those who make a study of cookery, and any of us may be glad to add them to our collection.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

No case of contagious blood poison is ever cured until the last particle of the virus has been removed from the circulation. The least taint left in the blood will sooner or later, cause a fresh outbreak of the trouble, with all its hideous and destructive symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, copper colored spots, falling hair, sores and ulcers, etc. No other medicine so surely cures contagious blood poison as S. S. S. It goes down into the blood and steadily and surely drives out every particle of the infection. It absolutely and perfectly purifies the blood, and leaves this vital fluid as fresh, rich and healthy as it was before the destructive virus of contagious blood poison entered the circulation. S. S. S. quickly takes effect on the blood, and gradually the symptoms disappear, the health is improved, the skin cleared of all spots, sores and other blemishes, the hair stops coming out, the mouth and throat heal and when S. S. S. has cleansed the system of the poison no trace of the disease is left. S. S. S. cures contagious blood poison because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, tested and proven for more than forty years. Book on this disease with suggestions for home treatment, and any medical advice sent free to all who write.

BUILT UP.

How Richmond Hill (N. Y.) Man Got Rid of Colds.

The best time to do things is right when they need to be done.

That is why we are urging you to build yourself up right now, before spring passes. If you are weak and worn out, nervous and miserable, you ought not to delay another day, but start now to taking Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil. The longer you wait, the more unnecessary trouble you have.

We say "unnecessary" because we know Vinol will build you up and make you strong. Here is what M. E. Leggett, of Richmond Hill, N. Y., says: "Last spring when I was badly run down and had a cold I used Vinol with the greatest satisfaction. It not only cured the cold but built up my strength and made me feel much better than I had for a long time."

There is no risk—we guarantee Vinol to give satisfaction, and you get your money back if it does not. The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind.

THE UNDERWORLD OF LONDON

Realm of Festering Unrest for Which There is No Peace and No Hope.

A dreadful, fearful underworld. A wilderness of sin infested with crawling atomies as with vermin. A gloomy realm of festering unrest for which there is no peace, no hope, no relief, no salvation. A place of darkness, in which children awake in the night to grapple with the unclean thing. And that is what all the poor lost souls down there are doing, all night long and every night, but not by days, because there is no day in that foul Tophet. Down there it is all darkness and a nightmare of haunting forms and faces. Faces and forms made visible in the darkness by the phosphorescence of their own corruption. The old, old faces of little children. The hideous childishness of senility. They gibber at you as you pass, and flout and mock you in your dreams afterward, all dabbled with tears and sweat and contorted with pain, yet bursting and swollen with evil mirth at the sight of one another's misery and suffering. They loom through the driving reek, pale, spectral, floating on the unclean wind that forever drifts through these malodorous stews of infamy in a never-ending succession of ogling death-masks. Women's faces drift along with these others, weeping with an infantile abandon, making an ugly mouth and letting the big glittering drops ooze from their sunken or rheumy eyes and trickle down their bloated or hollow cheeks. Young men's faces, perplexed and frowning, that should be gay or resolute.

The sky above that intorted maze of charnel-houses is red as if with the vital stream of life as it ebbs out with the dying day. Night comes down as if God frowned.—Forum.

"Tattoo" Veil

BLACK AND WHITE COSTUME WOMAN HAS CLEVER SCHEME

Idea That Really Never Has Lost Favor Comes With New Versions of the Mode.

Possible Accidents to Costumes, No Matter What Their Color, Are All Provided For.

Black and white costumes, it seems, have been revived, though probably few have ever been able to discover that they were in need of any such process. A smart new version of the mode may be seen in a suit consisting of a white linen skirt and a black taffeta coat, in Russian blouse style, which is adorned with white linen buttons and buttonholes bound with white linen. Another striking black and white combination is in a gown of oyster white satin, the skirt of which opens in front to show an upward turning point of black satin, underskirt. This is all the black there is, except in the girdle, which is of black velvet. A hat that would be altogether stunning worn by the right woman is a wide black straw of graceful lines, which is entirely covered on the upper side by a drapery of white chiffon. The trimming is a flat mass of pure white roses.

The Living Room.

In choosing chairs for the living room the individual requirements of the members of the family should be remembered, so that when the family is gathered together there will be a comfortable spot for each member.

The curtains, too, should be chosen in accordance with the needs and desires of the family.

Since the living room is always where the privacy of home life is enjoyed, the curtains should, if necessary, serve as protection from passers-by.

On the other hand, the room will probably require all the light possible. A happy arrangement is often made by having upper and lower curtains. Such sash curtains are made in two tiers and hung on two sets of brass rods, so that either the upper or lower half, or both, can readily be drawn aside.

Narrow Belts Smart.

While wide girdlelike belts are fashionable, there is something chic and smart about the narrow belt which the former lack.

Black patent leather belts one and a half inches in width are popular. These are decorated with a buckle to match, or one of antique silver. Plain stitched cloth belts to match the suit are also worn. Sometimes these are trimmed with tiny white buttons arranged in a design at the back.

Narrow satin belts are in demand. Some are made of contrasting color from that used in the dress.

Suede and leather belts are made in all widths desired, and in every color.

Shoes in Colors.

Every effort is being made to produce novelties. Many colors are being made up into suede shoes—purple, sage green, sea blue, raspberry red. The colored shoes are worn with dresses to match, and with white and black gowns, and colored stockings of these bright shades are worn with black shoes.

New black stockings have the walls of Troy in straight lines from the knee, which looks like black satin ribbon. Those who are economically inclined have lisle thread heels and toes to their silk stockings, for silk does not last long, especially if you walk much.

GOOD COMBINATION.

The effectiveness of black and gray, shown in a gown of gray cloth allied to black panne and black Spanish lace.

Dainty Dresser Cover.

For a dresser cover, take three embroidered handkerchiefs, sew a row of insertion around each one; then join them together, and put a narrow lace around all; line with any preferred color of cambric, tacking at each corner so it can be easily removed for laundering. Put at each corner a bow of ribbon the color of the lining. This makes a very pretty dresser cover.

The suggestion that there be a reduction in the city liquor license is not one to meet with public approval. Aside from the temperance feature of the question, which in itself ought to be enough to kill the proposition, it is remembered that there were more applicants for license at the present figure than the law would accommodate. Furthermore it is recalled that it was one of the strong arguments of those favoring the saloons that the money received from the licenses would be a great aid to the city financially.

Indianapolis may have enjoyed the joke of having Lew Shank for Mayor but the state will hardly fall in with the idea of having the joke passed along in the form of electing him governor.

Art Exhibit.

The Indianapolis Star recently printed the following: "The Indiana artists' traveling exhibit under the direction of the chairman of the art committee of the State Federation, Mrs. M. F. Johnston of Richmond, is now on its helpful rounds, doing more than many persons realize to mold public taste and to create a demand for the best in art. The increasing popularity of the exhibits demonstrates that all the public needs in order to enjoy and recognize good art is the opportunity to see and know it. These are the pictures to be exhibited in Society Hall, Seymour, beginning Thursday evening, March 14. It will continue for one week, each afternoon from 2 to 6 and evening from 7. In order to defray expenses there will be an admission fee of ten cents."

SHORT BERRY BOXESWill Get Their Users In Trouble, Says State Commissioner.

Indianapolis, March 13.—A berry grower who has written to H. E. Barnard, state commissioner of weights and measures, to ascertain what should be done with berry boxes constructed on the wine measure plan instead of the dry measure plan, has been told that unless he wishes to encounter trouble when the sales begin, he should not attempt to market his berries in the boxes. The quart size berry box built on the wine measure plan contains 57.75 cubic inches, while the dry measure quart, which is the standard for measuring berries, contains 67.2 cubic inches, a difference of about ten cubic inches.

Have Indictments Quashed.*MERE SPARRING FOR POINTS

Not With Any Hope of Securing Dismissal of Charges Against Them but in Order to Take Advantage of Any Technical Defects in the Indictments Later, the Defense Proceeds.

Indianapolis, March 13.—When Judge Anderson overruled motions to quash the indictments filed by attorneys for six Chicago defendants, the defense in the dynamite cases lost the first skirmish. Demurrers to the indictments were filed by all the forty-six defendants who appeared in court and argument as to the validity of these indictments was begun.

After overruling every attack of the defense against the indictments, Judge Anderson halted the prosecution's "expedient" program and gave the indicted men nearly seven months in which to prepare for trial. Tuesday, Oct. 1, was the date set by the court for beginning the trials.

During the course of long arguments by attorneys for the defense, Judge Anderson frequently indicated that he did not agree with some of the views of the law advanced by the defense. In the camp of the defense it was admitted even before the hearing began that the defense had little or no hope of having their attack on the indictments sustained. It was said the fight would be made in order to put the defense in a position to take advantage of any technical defects in the indictments later, if the defendants were found guilty and an appeal was desired.

When court convened forty-six defendants sat in the United States district court room, the largest number of defendants ever indicted jointly for the same offense in the legal history of the country. To accommodate the defendants the chairs usually occupied by petit jurors were used, and grouped around the defendants in the jury box were thirty-four other defendants. All seating space within the bar was filled by attorneys in the cases.

MAJORITY FAILEDRecent List of Questions in Teachers' Examination Too Hard.

Indianapolis, March 13.—Grading of teachers' examination papers, just completed in the office of Superintendent Greathouse, shows that of 1,209 teachers taking the January and February examination, two-thirds failed.

A meeting of the board has been called for Thursday and Friday when the matter will be investigated.

Since the manuscripts have been sent in complaints from teachers from all parts of the state have been received regarding the questions on music the teachers had to wrestle with. It is said the questions are too technical and difficult for the common school teacher.

Many of the teachers who failed to pass "fell down" on the questions as to the names of authors of famous old oratories.

Foolish Laws.

A Kansas City paper recently compiled a list of the foolish laws on the statute books of Kansas. Some of these laws and the penalties they impose are as follows:
"To fail to clean a henhouse once every twenty-four hours, $25 fine."
"To sell a dime novel with an account of crime, $100 fine."
"To keep tame pigeons, $15."
"To talk back to a policeman, $100."
"To sic' one dog on another, $100."
"To hitch a horse to a weight weighing less than thirty pounds, $25."
"To throw rice at newly-wed couples, $100."
"To whittle on a fence, $25."
"To spit a wad of gum in a street car, $25."
"To have a barbed wire fence around your premises, $25."
"To carry a stone out of another man's yard, $50."
"To throw a banana peeling into Cow Creek, $100."
"To watch a corn doctor work his jaw on the street, $50."

All these laws are not utterly foolish, but the offenses aimed at are in most cases of such trifling nature as scarcely to arise to the dignity of legislation. They could be more appropriately dealt with in city and town ordinances, and some of them, indeed, are hardly sufficiently important to consume the time of a City Council or a board of village trustees. There is too much of a tendency in all Legislatures to clutter up the statute books with useless and trivial laws. Kansas has gone no further in that line than some other States have gone, and it is probable that a search of the assembly acts of almost any State would bring to light a number of ridiculous laws which might better have been left off the books.—Courier Journal.

In Memoriam.

Willard Talley was born Sept. 9, 1867 and died March 10, 1911.

Thou art gone to dwell among the blessed,
Where all is joy, peace and rest;
No more to suffer here below—
The pain and death we mortals know.

O Death! Why claim the good and kind?
The noble, both in heart and mind?
Why not claim those who do not care
To strew sweet flowers everywhere?

Lord, we submit, for Thou art wise;
Thy goodness will for all suffice,
Our loss is his eternal gain;
He has gone to join the heavenly train.

Son, farewell; thy form unseen,
We will hold in memory ever green,
Until we, too, from earth shall fly,
And join thee in thy home on high.

We miss thee, son, once so dear,
No more thy gentle voice we hear;
We miss thy tender, fond embrace;
We miss thy ever-smiling face.

Call not back the dear departed,
Anchored safe where storms are o'er
On the borderland we left them,
Soon to meet to part no more.

Then, son, rest; forever rest,
Thy home is now among the blessed;
Thy work on earth forever done;
No more on earth we watch to see thee.

CHAPTER V. AT THE OPERA.

WHEN John Steele left the court toward the end of the day he held his head as a man who thinks deeply. From the door he directed his steps toward Charing Cross, but only to wheel abruptly and retrace his way. He was not an absentminded man, yet he had been striding unconsciously toward his customary destination at that hour, the several chambers at once his office and his home. For a moment the strong face of the man relaxed as if in amusement at his own readiness. Gradually, however, it once more resumed its expression of musing thoughtfulness.

Turning into a narrow way not far from the embankment, he stopped before the door of a solid looking brick building, let himself in and made his way upstairs. On the third floor he applied another and smaller key to another lock and from a hall entered a large apartment, noteworthy for its handsome array of books that reached from floor to ceiling wherever there was shelf space. Passing through this apartment, John Steele stepped into that adjoining, the sitting and dining room.

After a discreet rapping at the door, followed by the appearance of a round faced little man with a tray, interrupted by a moment's contemplation or reverie on Steele's part. Seating himself at the table, he responded negatively to the servant's inquiry if "anything" would be required and when the door was withdrawn mechanically scanned the letters and to his simple contentment. He ate with no great relish, his appetite, soon brushed the spiced, half read, aside and pushed back his chair.

Lighting a pipe, he picked up one of the papers. Amid voluminous wastes of type an item in the court and society column had caught his eye:

Sir Charles and Lady Wray, who are intending henceforth to reside in England, have returned to the stately Wray mansion in Piccadilly, where they will live for the season. Our well known governor and his lady are accompanied by their niece, the beautiful and accomplished Miss Jocelyn Wray, only child of Sir Charles' younger brother, the late Hon. Mr. Richard Wray, whose estate included enormous holdings in Australia as well as several thousand acres in Devonshire. This charming young colonial has already captivated London society.

John Steele read carefully this bit of news and then reread it. He even found himself guilty of perusing all the other paragraphs, the comings and goings, the fine doings! They related to a world he had thought little about, a world within the world, just as the people who lived in tunnels and dark passages constituted another world within the world. Her name danced in illustrious company. Here were dukes and earls and viscounts, a sprinkling of the foreign element, begums, emirs, the nation's guests. He saw also "Sir Charles, Lady Wray and Miss Wray" among the long list of box holders for that night at the opera, a gala occasion, commanded by royalty for the entertainment of royalty and incidentally of certain barbarian personages who had come across the seas to be diplomatically coiffed and fed.

"Put out my clothes," he said to the servant who appeared with a lamp, "and have a cab at the door."

The opera had already begun, but grand-monium still reigned about the box office. A thunder of applause from within, indicating that the first act had come to an end, was followed by the usual egress of black and white figures impatient for cigarettes and light lobby gossip.

"Divine, eh? The opera, I mean?" A voice accosted John Steele, and, turning, he beheld a familiar face with black whiskers, that of Captain Forsythe. "This is somewhat different from the morning's environment?"

"Yes," said the other. "But your first question," with a smile, "I'm afraid I can't answer. I've just come, and if I hadn't—well, I'm no judge of music."

A bell sounded. John Steele, excusing himself, entered the auditorium and was shown to his seat.

The curtain went up at last, the music began, and melodies that seemed born in the springtime succeeded one another. Perennial in freshness, theme followed theme; what joy, what gladness, what merriment, what madness! How long was the act; how short! It came to a sudden end. After applause and bravos men again got up and walked out. He, too, left his seat and strolled toward the back.

"Mr. Steele! One moment!" He found himself once more addressed by the good humored Captain Forsythe. "Behold in me a Mercury, committed to an imperative mission. You are commanded to appear not in the royal box, but in Sir Charles'."

"Sir Charles Wray's?" John Steele regarded the speaker quickly. "Yes," laughed the other. "You see, I happened to mention I had seen you. 'Why didn't you bring him with you to the box?' queried Sir Charles. He, by the by, went in for law himself before he became governor. 'Only had time to shake hands this morning.' 'Yes; why didn't I?"

spoke up Miss Jocelyn. "You command me to bring him?" I inquired. "By all means," she laughed. "I command. So here I am."

John Steele did not answer, but Captain Forsythe without waiting for a reply turned and started up the broad stairway. The other, after a moment's hesitation, followed, duly entered one of the larger boxes, spoke to Sir Charles and his wife and returned the bow of their niece. Amid varied platitudes Steele's glance turned oftener to the girl. She was dressed in white; a snowy boa drooped from the slender bare shoulders as if it might any moment slip off; a string of pearls, each one with a pearl of pure light in the center, clasped her throat.

She waved her hand to the seat next to her and as she sat down, "Isn't it splendid?" irrelevantly.

"The spectacle or the opera?" he asked slowly, looking into blue eyes.

"It was the opera I meant. I suppose the spectacle is very grand; but," enthusiastically, "it was the music I was thinking of. How it grips one! Tell me what you think of 'The Barber,' Mr. Steele."

"I'm afraid my views wouldn't be very interesting," he answered. "I know nothing whatever about music."

"Nothing?" Her eyes widened a little. In her accent was mild wonder. He looked down at the shimmering white folds near his feet. "In earlier days my environment was not exactly a musical one."

"No? I suppose you were engaged in more practical concerns?"

He did not answer directly. "Perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me something about Rossini's music, Miss Wray?"

"I tell you?" Her light silvery laugh rang out. "And Captain Forsythe has only been telling me—all of us—that you were one of the best informed men he had ever met."

"You see how wrong he was."

The abrupt appearance of the musicians and the dissonances attendant was drowned, however, in a renewed outbreak of applause.

"Old friend, don't you know," went on the voice of Sir Charles. "Had one rare adventure together, one of the kind that cements a man to you."

As he spoke the light in the theater flared up. John Steele, no longer hesitating, uncertain, rose. His face had regained its composure. He regarded the slender, aristocratic figure of the nobleman in the background. Faultlessly dressed, Lord Ronsdale carried himself with his habitual languid air of assurance. The two bowed. The stony glance of the lord met the impassive one of the man. Then a puzzled look came into the nobleman's eyes. He gazed at Steele more closely. His glance cleared.

"Thought for an instant I'd seen you somewhere before, by Jove!" he drawled in his metallic tone. "But of course I haven't. Never forget a face, don't you know?"

"I may not say so much, may not have the diplomat's gift of always remembering people to the extent your lordship possesses it, but I am equally certain I have never before enjoyed the honor of being presented to your lordship," said John Steele. Steele turned and, holding out his hand, thanked Sir Charles and his wife for their courtesy.

Jocelyn Wray gazed around. "You are leaving before the last act," she said, with an accent of surprise.

"Our day at home, Mr. Steele, is 'Thursday,' put in the governor's lady, majestically gracious.

His face, which had been contained, impassive, now betrayed in the slightest degree an expression of irresolution. Her quick look caught it, became more whimsical. He seemed actually for an instant asking himself if he should come. She laughed ever so slightly. The experience was novel. Who before had ever weighed the pros and cons when extended this privilege? Then the next moment the blue eyes on tuning interrupted her response. Steele rose and was about to take his departure when Sir Charles intervened.

"Why don't you stay?" he asked, with true colonial heartiness. "Plenty of room! Unless you've a better place! Two vacant chairs!"

John Steele looked around. He saw three vacant chairs and took one a little aside and slightly behind the young girl, while the governor's wife, who had moved from the front at the conclusion of the previous act, now returned to her place next her niece. During the act some one came in and took a seat in the background. If Steele heard he did not look around. His gaze remained fastened on the stage. Between him and it—or them, art's gayly attired illusions—a tress of golden hair sometimes intervened, but he did not move. Through threads like woven flashes of light he regarded the scene of the poet's fantasy. Did they make her a part of it—did they seem to the man the fantasy's intangible medium, its imagery? Threads of gold, threads of melody! He saw the former, heard the latter. He seemed content with a partial view of the stage and so remained until the curtain went down. The girl turned. In her eyes was a question.

"Beautiful!" said the man, looking at her.

"Charming! What coloratura! And the bravura!" Captain Forsythe applauded vigorously.

"You've never met Lord Ronsdale, I believe, Mr. Steele?" Sir Charles' voice, close to his ear, inquired.

"Lord Ronsdale?" John Steele looked perfunctorily around toward the back of the box and saw there a face faintly illumined in the light from the stage, a cynical face, white, mask-like. Had his own features not been set from the partial glow that sifted upward the sudden emotion that swept Steele's countenance would have been observed. A sound escaped his lips—lost some of their mirth. Perhaps his manner made her feel the frank informality she had unconsciously been guilty of. She regarded him more coldly.

"Thank you," he said. "You are very good. I shall be most glad." And, bowing to her and to the others, he once more turned. As he passed Lord Ronsdale the eyes of the two men again met. Those of the nobleman suddenly dilated, and he started. His gaze followed the retreating figure.

ANSWER IT HONESTLY.

Are the Statements of Seymour Citizens Not More Reliable Than Those of Utter Strangers?

This is a vital question.

It is fraught with interest to Seymour.

It permits of only one answer.

It cannot be evaded or ignored.

A Seymour citizen speaks here. Speaks for the welfare of Seymour.

A citizen's statement is reliable.

An utter stranger's doubtful.

Home proof is the best proof.

Mrs. William Himler, 604 S. Walnut St., Seymour, Ind., says: "A member of my family suffered intensely from disordered kidneys. He had medical treatment and also used remedies, but received no permanent benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were taken. This preparation restored his strength and energy and corrected all kidney disorders."

ATTITUDE OF MEDICAL MEN

Use of Alcohol for Medicinal Purposes Rapidly Diminishing—Does Not Stimulate Heart.

Dr. Richard C. Cabot contributes the following explanation as to the present day attitude of physicians towards alcohol:

"The use of alcohol as a medicine is steadily and rapidly diminishing. It is true that the use of all drugs has also fallen off considerably, but this change is more striking as regards alcohol. There are three main purposes for which alcohol has been used as medicine:

(1) As a quick stimulant—for fainting, exhaustion, and extreme cold. This service doctors now generally agree is better performed by hot coffee, hot tea or hot soup. The heat is the main thing.

(2) As a support to the heart in heart disease and in fevers. Here the use of alcohol still continues, but it is constantly and steadily diminishing, because research has shown that it does not stimulate a bad or good heart action, as was formerly supposed. Some physicians believe that alcohol helps the patient in his fight against the germs, but the weight of opinion is against this. By most physicians alcohol is still occasionally used in fevers and in diabetes for a purpose still to be mentioned.

(3) As a food. Though alcohol is undoubtedly a poison to the nervous system this harmful effect is neutralized in some cases of illness by the fact that it does supply fuel and energy to the body. When other foods are rejected (wholly or in part) by the stomach or when, as in diabetes, certain common foods cease to benefit the body, alcohol may be valuable, but this is comparatively rare.

In a recent article in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal Dr. Cabot contributed some interesting figures showing the diminished use of alcohol in the Massachusetts General hospital. The figures, showing also diminished use of other drugs as well, have been arranged in both tabular and chart form and used as an exhibit at the Boston "1915" exposition.

In 1898 the hospital expended a total for alcohol drinks of $2,322, or 46 cents per patient. These figures were increased the following year to $3,002, or 57 cents per patient. Since that time there has been a steady decrease, and in 1907 the total cost of alcoholic stimulants used was but $813, or 13 cents per patient. During the same period the cost of other medicines administered also decreased, not because of lessened prices for drugs, but because fewer medicines of any sort are now administered.

EFFECT OF SMALL QUANTITY

Backbone of Contentment That Moderate Drinking Is Harmless Has Been Thoroughly Broken.

The backbone of the contention that moderate drinking is harmless has been now so thoroughly broken that physicians do not hesitate to express unequivocal convictions upon the subject. Thus Dr. A. W. Ives, in the Detroit Medical Journal, says:

"It is not pretended that there are in these cases (moderate users) pathologic changes due to alcohol, but even where there is as yet no such demonstrable change, there is a disturbance in the cranial circulation and a drug effect causing defective cerebration, loss of will power; loss of the power to think and judge up to one's normal; there is a reduction of intellect. There generally is, however, increased gullibility, loquacity, and a well-recognized inability to judge of just the impression one is creating, of the kind of an exhibition one is making of himself. A drug that can bring a brain's function to the point of coma cannot, even in mild doses, add anything to the power of that brain.

"It is the most subtle and far-reaching of all poisons. . . . It tends to shorten life. . . . Its influences are strongly hereditary."

TOPERS IN LONDON SCHOOLS

Investigator Reports Habit of Drinking Alcohol Among Children Widespread in English City.

"Do children drink alcohol?"

The question was put to F. G. Macereth of London, who has been making inquiry into the matter, and he made answer at a meeting of the Women's Temperance league which greatly horrified the good women there. In one school alone, he said, he found that 40 per cent. of the children were regular alcohol drinkers.

In fact, from the investigations he had made he had come to the conclusion that there must be something like 200,000 child drinkers in London, and probably 2,000,000 in the large towns and districts. Parents, in sheer ignorance, often gave their children strong drink because they thought it was good for them, and a woman present at the meeting volunteered the information that she knew for a fact in some public schools beer was almost compulsory.

PHYSICAL WRECK RESTORED TO HEALTH BY GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY.

I feel it my duty to furnish you with my testimonials as to what your remedy Swamp-Root did for me when I was a physical wreck from kidney and bladder trouble.

Some years ago I was not able to do any work and could only just creep around and am satisfied that had it not been for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I would not have lived. After using the preparation for one month I was able to work some and when I had used $8.00 worth of Swamp-Root I could do a good day's work. I used about $10.00 worth altogether and would not take $10,000 for the good that it did me. I consider it a God-send to suffering humanity for the diseases for which you recommend it and have recommended it to many sufferers.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

By Common Garden Sage, a Simple Remedy for Dandruff, Falling, Faded, Gray Hair.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy, and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days, on account of souring quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Andrews Drug Co.

JUSTICE TO EMPLOYES

WORTHY RAILROAD BILL NOW BEFORE CONGRESS.

Provides for Graduated Scale of Compensation for Those Injured in the Line of Duty—Commission Has Done Good Work.

What appears to be as satisfactory a compromise as could have been expected is reached in the report of the employers' liability commission. Congress will be asked to enact a law providing for a graduated scale of compensation, through Federal government agencies, for injuries to employees, whether or not caused by negligence of railroads, engaged in interstate commerce.

The basis of the rate of compensation proposed is 50 per cent of the current wage in the particular line of work, to be paid in case of total disability, with a graduated scale according to the extent of the disability. At present the average annual cost to railroads for damages resulting from loss of life or personal injuries of employees is about $12,000,000. Under the proposed law they will have to pay only about $3,000,000 more.

In the course of its investigations the commission discovered that about 3,000 railway employees are killed each year and that 100,000 more suffer injuries as the result of accidents, but that of the $12,000,000 in damages which the railroads pay only about $5,000,000 ever reaches the employee or his family, the rest being consumed in expenses of litigation or in lawyer's fees for effecting compromises. The commission also discovered that not more than 30 per cent of the railway employees who suffer loss of life or personal injury in employment ever receive any compensation whatever, all the others failing to collect or losing their cases in court because of some one of the many defenses to such actions set up under the common law.

Since President Brown of the New York Central railroad is a member of the commission, it is believed that the railroad interests will accept the proposed bill.

Wild Engine Changes Roads In Dash.

Traveling for thirteen miles without a guiding hand, during which time it switched from one road to another, Northern Pacific engine No. 2347 came to a stop at Cedar station without harm to itself or other trains, writes a Minneapolis correspondent.

The engine started of its own accord at Northtown Junction, and rushing northward hit the switch ten miles farther, where it was thrown over to the Great Northern tracks, upon which it proceeded.

Soon after the runaway started, another engine was mangled and the chase began, but the pursuers kept to the Northern Pacific tracks, not thinking the engine could have changed roads. Shortly afterward word was received that one engine had stopped at Cedar station, three miles out on the Great Northern line.

Speed on French Lines.

According to a table showing relative speeds on the French railways, the Compagnie du Nord holds the record for the average commercial speed for coaches of all classes, of 50 to 55 miles an hour; the "rapides" often exceed this speed. Some other companies, like the Est and the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranee, compare favorably with the Nord, and with the American passenger train service, but the French "train-omnibus" hardly exceeds 18 miles an hour.

USE OLD TRACTION ENGINE

Washington Lumber Company Has Novel and Useful Contrivance for Hauling Logs.

One of the lumber companies operating near Orting, Wash., has built a rather unusual logging railway and equipped it with homemade rolling stock. The track is composed of timbers hewn from small fir trees, laid on cross-ties placed from 8 to 10 feet apart and spiked together at the ends. The locomotive is an old traction en-

STILL ARE BEHIND AMERICA

Though They Have Made Improvements, English Lines Do Not Yet Rank With Ours.

The past year has been a remarkable one in the annals of our railways, for new developments in engines. Nearly all our big railway companies have been building new types of engines and perfecting the old types.

The chief feature is that considerable strides have been made in the adoption of superheating, which in the case of several of the great lines now appears to have passed the experimental stage.

Among the most powerful engines that are now being built are the 4-4-2 express passenger locomotives of the Northeastern railway, the Great Central's 2-8-0 locomotives for mineral traffic, and the London and North-western 4-4-0 express passenger engines, the first of which was called "Coronation."

The most notable improvement that has been made in passenger coaches are the new fifty-six bogie coaches on the Great Central which are made of varnished teak with the match boarding style of slides instead of the usual panelling, the numerals being in raised metals. Mention should also be made of the new bogie observation car built by the London and Northwestern railway to run between Llandudno and the Blaenau Ffestiniog.

Nearly every American train has its observation car with its wide windows and it is strange that there are not more of this type on English railways. Another feature of American railways—the typewriter and the handy library of reference books and novels—is still lacking on most of our English railways.—Manchester Guardian.

Railroad Saves Beautiful Trees.

Some of the so-called soulless corporations are not so soulless after all. At least that opinion is held by residents of Sharpsville and in favor of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

The Baltimore & Ohio company went to the trouble to purchase extra land for tracks and a station in order to allow two beautiful specimens of silver leaf maple trees, nearly 75 feet high, to keep on growing on the right of way when, by chopping them down many hundreds of dollars could have been saved.

When the engineers ran their grades into the town the plans called for the tracks to be laid over the ground now occupied by the pair of stately trees. Then some of the big officials inspected the route and discovered the trees. Incidentally a few lovers of the trees in Sharpsville went to the magnates with "Railroad men, spare that tree." The plea was heeded and the engineers had to run new lines and make plans for a curved track in order that the trees might stand undisturbed.—Sharon Correspondence Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Memory Kept Green.

A picturesque ceremony took place recently at the old parish church of St. Georges, Gravesend, England, when David Varchell's Charity was distributed. The custom has been observed for 209 Christmases, being interrupted only when the church building was burned down about 150 years ago. Forty poor persons each received a loaf and a new sixpence. The preacher of the anniversary sermon received 10s. under the terms of the will. The church wardens and the caretaker each received half a crown, and five shillings were spent on candles for the illumination of the candelabra which Varchell presented to the church. Twenty boys who, during the week, had been completely clothed from Varchell's fund, stood up in the Corporation pews while the preacher referred to the donor long since gone.

Against Unclean Journals.

OROZCO HOLDS THE SITUATION

Coming Battle Expected to Be Decisive.

MEXICAN CAPITAL IN DANGER

If Rebel General Is Victorious in the North It Is Believed His Immediate Step Will Be to March on the Seat of Government, Which Is in No Position to Withstand a Determined Attack.

Mexico City, March 13.—The army
here, which numbers less than 3,000, has been ordered by General Villar, who commands the military district of Mexico City, to make preparations to resist an attack and to quell mobs.
The preparations are being made for the expected visit of General Miranda and 2,000 rebels.

Everybody is waiting anxiously for news of the result of the battle between the rebel general, Orozco, and federal troops in Chihuahua, as it is thought it will be decisive. The fate of the country hinges on the result.
It is thought if Orozco is successful
he will hasten to the capital, and then the situation will be desperate.

The exodus of foreigners from Mexico continues.

Called on to Explain.

Chihuahua, March 13.—Looting the Banco Nacional at Juarez last week of $20,000 by the rebels is to be punished by General Orozco. It is said that General Rojas, who, while commander of Juarez, had the looting done, has been summoned here to explain the incident to Orozco and that the money will be returned. General Orozco is in receipt of telegrams from General Salazara in which the latter stated that he expected a brush with the federal garrison at Santa Rosalia.

TWO WERE KILLED

When a Big Four Flyer Dashed Into Freight at Greencastle.

Greencastle, Ind., March 13.—Two persons were killed, three fatally hurt and seven others severely injured when an eastbound Big Four passenger crashed head on into a freight train near the station here last night.

The engineer of the freight train, John C. Milani of Indianapolis, was instantly killed, as was William E.
Jones of Neosha, Kan., an iron worker, who was riding in the cab of the passenger engine. The fatally injured were W. L. Davis, Neosha, Kan., skull crushed, arms and legs broken; Elmer E. Donaldson, Indianapolis, engineer passenger train, legs broken and internal injuries; Dana L. Hammon, Indianapolis, legs and arms broken, internal injuries.

Several passengers were badly cut by flying glass, but most of the injured were on the list of the train crews.

Railroad officials are at a loss to explain the confusion in orders which led to the wreck. The passenger train does not stop at Greencastle and was traveling at a speed of about fifty-five miles an hour when the crash occurred. The freight train had been waiting at Greencastle for nearly half an hour, it is said, for instructions to continue westward. Both engines were telescoped and the buffet and struck the caboose. The engine plowed its way through the caboose

Display of Suits, Coats and Dresses

They Show Our Readiness for Spring

Particularly attractive and pleasing are the many changes in style featured in our new spring models of Tailored Suits.

An authoritative showing is made this week. Everything about these coats and suits has a distinctive air of newness. Fashion admits of considerable latitude in cut and trimmings. Many odd and unique ideas are brought out.

Coats at $5.98 to $22.50

A large number of very desirable coats have just arrived. The range of sizes includes Women, Misses and Juniors.

These are distinctive coats. They possess the new features that will be most favored throughout the season.
Storm Serges and Whip cord are prominent among them. They are practical and the prettiest designs brought out for many a season.

Serge and Silk Dresses. More than ordinary values to be found in these new spring models. Everyone just received.

Suits at $10.00 to $35.00

Both cutaway and straight front models are seen in the jackets. Back slightly fitted or loose. The hipless figure is continued.

Skirts retain straight lines of former seasons, but are some wider, a welcome change to many.

We show French serges and Whip cord in great numbers; navy blue, tan and shades of gray are the most stylish for this season. The spring selling season is short so you will do well to make your choice as early as possible.

Gingham and Lingerie Dresses. An unusual assortment is shown at all popular prices.
